LETTER OF RECOMMENDATION

I write to strongly recommend Mr. Om Patel for admission to your Master's program. I have been Om's faculty supervisor during his sixth semester at G. H. Patel College of Engineering & Technology while he was working on his project, "Automated Hostel Access System" conducted over fourteen weeks with a second partner. During this period, I saw him grow into a truly technically talented and responsible engineer.

Since the beginning, Om has shown earnestness and responsibility in his approach to his work. He took complete ownership and, when feedback or corrections were provided, did not argue or delay in submitting them. He listened attentively to suggestions and followed up on the recommendations immediately.

Notably, he handled adversity well. One specific example is that when the facial recognition module did not return consistent results in different lighting, Om tackled the problem methodically, rather than scrapping the feature or looking for an easier solution. He devoted three additional weeks to consulting technical literature, examining alternative coding approaches and retesting repeatedly until reliability was achieved. He did not complain about the extra workload, which is indicative of the patience and persistence needed for advanced study.

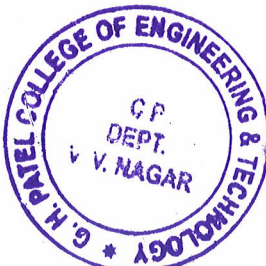

Since the project was to be done between the two of them, his collaborative skills were also evident. Om continually provided support. If his partner was having a problem with anything from the database design to API integration, Om did not just do the work himself but sat down and showed an explanation of how things work, so they could both progress together. This reflects a team orientation where he valued co-operation and overall team success. His final presentation is clear and assured, revealing thorough mastery of the subject.

Furthermore, Om's motivation set him apart. He chose the project not to impress people with some fancy technology but to solve a real problem in local hostels of student safety and attendance; he actually showed an engineering mindset oriented toward societal impact.

Mr. Om Patel is a hardworking student with a very commendable character and strong technical ability. He is honest and eager to learn; I am confident that he will do well at your university, and therefore, he is recommended without any reservation.

Sincerely,

Prof. Brijesh P. Patel
